

Can there any confusion between the play made in 2nd seat and the play of covering of honours with honours? Actually I don't think so -see if your answers agree with mine below.

e)	(dummy)
(you)	A76
Q42	AJ109
K842	J8
K43	A842
K76

Q) which spade should you play when declarer leads a spade from their hand ?

A) I don't know !!!! it all depends on whether declarer has led a small card or has led an honour.

Try again

Q) which spade should you play when declarer leads a small spade from their hand ?

A) you should play low

Q) which spade should you play when declarer leads the spade honour ,the Jack, from their hand ?

A) you should play high (the Q)

Q) which heart should you play when declarer leads a small heart from their hand ?

A) you should play low

Q) which heart should you play when declarer leads the heart honour ,the Q , from their hand ?

A) you should play low

Q) which diamond should you play when declarer leads a small diamond from their hand ?

A) you should play the King

Q) which diamond should you play when declarer leads the diamond honour ,the Q , from their hand ?

A) you should play the King

Q) which club should you play when declarer leads a small club from their hand ?

A) you should play low.

Q) which club should you play when declarer leads the club honour ,the Q ,from their hand ?

A) you should play the King

Rules like 2nd player plays low/cover an Hon with a Hon are half baked at best. Better is to be clear why you are playing in a particular way and what you are hoping to achieve.

